

Burgundy Winemaker Dinner

With Stéphane Aviron
Monday, June 18, 2018 at Carrol's Creek Café

Stéphane Aviron has been one of the leaders in reviving true Beaujolais. His wines are elegant, focused and very pure, made in the traditional Burgundian method, with no carbonic maceration.

Aviron's are stunning examples of what Beaujolais can and should be. Though part of Burgundy, Beaujolais is distinct. The principal grape grown here is Gamay Noir. Quite apart from Beaujolais Nouveau, the best wines of the region are known as Cru Beaujolais. The 10 individual Crus, such as Moulin-à-Vent, Brouilly, Fleurie, Julienas, and Chénas, each have their own character, and much more depth than someone who has only tried a simple Beaujolais could ever guess. Beautifully fruited with racy notes of wet earth, herbs and spices, these food-friendly reds can be slightly chilled and enjoyed with a multitude of cuisines and offer tremendous value for their price.
